Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I am writing to you today to voice my opposition to the proposed change to a flat fee system for the Universal Service Fee. As I understand it, people like me who make only a few long distance and wireless calls each month would be required to pay a flat fee the same as high-volume callers. I don't see how anyone could possibly consider a proposal that places such an unfair burden on low-volume users of a utility. As it is, low-volume caller like me pay much more per call just for access to the phone system.

I urge you to reject the flat fee proposal to the USF.

Sincerely,

Paul Roche
